

Heng 13272 Staff Impression

Heng has a softly rounded face and neatly cut black hair. His features are gently defined, from the smooth curve of his jaw and rounded chin to a straight, moderate nose with a softly shaped tip. His eyes are dark with a slight lift at the outer corners. The upper lids have a subtle crease and are softly hooded. His brows are moderately thick and well-shaped, sitting close to his eyes with a mostly straight line and a gentle curve. He has a lean frame and a simple, polished style.

Born in China and fluent in Mandarin, Cantonese, and English, Heng brings an international perspective to the way he moves through the world. Travel has been an important source of enjoyment and discovery for him, particularly opportunities to encounter different cultures, museums, architecture, and local food. He is drawn to experiences that invite curiosity, from seeing a ballet or opera to exploring the character of a new place at an unhurried pace. Cooking is his practical creative outlet, especially when experimenting with flavors and cuisines encountered through travel. He also enjoys the companionship of dogs and makes room for regular jogging, appreciating the steady routine and clear-headedness that comes with getting outside and moving.

Academically, Heng earned a bachelor's degree in statistics. Today, he works in technical support within the technology sector, where careful problem-solving, patience, and dependable follow-through are central to the work. Describing himself as optimistic, open-minded, hardworking, ambitious, independent, and adaptable, he approaches responsibilities with a measured, thoughtful manner.

He is interested in continuing to grow professionally, particularly by taking on leadership and management responsibilities and guiding technical teams. The goal is not simply advancement but developing the skills to help others work effectively and solve problems together. Alongside professional ambitions, Heng hopes to continue traveling, learning from different communities, and making time for the arts, good food, and the people and experiences that broaden his perspective.
